WEIRD SCIENCE

THE PARTY: The Discovery Ball THE VENUE: The California Science Center, where cocktails were served with spacey, glow-in-the-dark green ice cubes amid dancing robots and a real-life space babe who gyrated all by her lonesome inside a plastic tube THE DRESS CODE: Galactic gala for space-aged traditionalists: tuxes and gowns for all BEST IN SHOW: Tray-passed appetizers delivered by servers on Segway Human Transporters, with no reported canapé casualties. A beaming Antonio Villaraigosa worked the crowd, and we mean worked it. By night's end, there wasn't an ungreased hand in the house —ALEXANDRIA ABRAMIAN-MOTT
